

The Metabolomics Society

The Metabolomics Society is an international, non-profit organization bringing together researchers from around the world interested in and excited about the development and application of metabolomics technologies across the full breadth of the biological and biomedical sciences. Metabolomics is the youngest of the 'omics sciences in the post-genomics era and aims to investigate the roles and functions of metabolites in biological, biochemical and physiological processes. The Society was founded in 2004 and has since grown into a global community with almost a thousand members, in part through the successes of its annual international conference, the increasing impact of its journal Metabolomics and its growing Individual and Corporate member benefits. To support this on-going growth and to keep its members up-to-date with the latest news, publications and events, the Board of Directors has forged a new partnership with The Metabolomics Innovation Centre, the publishers of MetaboNews.
